ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

The Congregation Moving in the Matter of Erecting a New Church — A Lot Bonded.

Since Rev. P. McF. McLeod assumed the pastorate of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, a new life has been infused into the congregation, which is probably the wealthiest in the community. The attendance has increased to so great an extent that it has been impossible to meet the demand for pews. In consequence of this gratifying condition of affairs, the congregation are seriously considering the desirability of constructing a new church, one that will have sufficient seating capacity, and the additional requirements of Sabbath school class rooms.

A preliminary meeting was held on Thursday evening for the purpose of discussing the question, and after some deliberation the church managers were appointed a committee with power to add to their number and to report upon the question. The managers have three sites from which to make a choice, and it is understood they have bonded the property fronting on Douglas street, and adjoining the Union Club for three months.

At the meeting the pastor stated that his visits had demonstrated the fact that St. Andrew's possessed in membership and adherents of some 418 persons, and the seating capacity of the present church was but 250. The necessity for larger premises was therefore apparent, and it was poor policy and otherwise undesirable to repair the present edifice.

The meeting adjourned, and will meet again shortly to further consider matters.

THE JOHN CASE.

Judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada—An Interesting Case.

On the 14th instant, in the Supreme Court of Canada, Mr. Justice Strong delivered a written judgment. He considered the conviction within section 183, of the Procedure Act, but even if there was any doubt upon the point he thought that the conviction could be sustained under subsection 2, of section 24.

The Chief Justice said that upon the facts of the case the court upon writ of error could give no judgment, but as it happened, the facts were stated in the case, and upon those facts he would have been glad if he could have come to a different conclusion as to the law but although he had struggled to come to a different conclusion he considered that in point of law the conviction must be affirmed.

Justices Fournier and Taschereau concurred.

The Chief Justice then said that individually he was of opinion that upon the facts the prisoner should receive executive clemency, and that it would be becoming in this court to represent the case to the minister of justice accordingly.

The other members of the court assented to this view except Mr. Justice Taschereau who thought that the court had no such jurisdiction.

Mr. Justice Strong considered that it was not a question of jurisdiction, but of propriety, and cited a recent privy council case where like action had been taken.

The performance of the steamship Etruria in crossing the Atlantic in six days, one hour and fifty-five minutes, is not only a wonderful one, but it awakens new interest as to the possibility of the voyage being made in even less time. Two steamers now building in Scotland are to be quadruple expansion engines that are expected to furnish even better results than the triple expansion engine that has done so well. The mind of the mechanic and builder is constantly at work, one experiment or result leading to another and probably more valuable one. The Etruria made over 508 miles in twenty-four hours on her fast trip, maintaining an average of 470 miles per day for the six days. A run across in five days within the next decade is now confidently spoken of as within the range of certainty.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Chauncey M. Depew Retires from the Contest and New Yorkers Support Harrison.

Three Ballots Taken and the Convention Adjourns—Harrison's chances Good—After Adjournment Col. "Bob" Ingersoll While Speaking is Yelled Down—The Meeting Adjourns after Much Disorder.

(Special to THE COLONIST.)

CHICAGO, June 22. — The convention was called to order a few minutes before 11 o'clock this morning. Chairman Estee, having lost his voice, called upon Senator Hiscock to preside. After prayer by Rev. J. H. Worcester, of Chicago, the balloting began. After three ballots were taken an adjournment until 7 p. m. was made.

IN THE EVENING.

The jam around Convention Hall tonight is something awful. Nothing like it has ever before been seen in Chicago. It seemed as though the entire population of the city and thousands of strangers had by a common impulse flocked out to the vicinity of Auditorium hall. It was with the greatest difficulty the delegates and ticket holders reached the interior of the building.

Immediately upon the convention being called to order Chauncey M. Depew was recognized by the chair and made an address withdrawing his name from the list of candidates. Mr. Depew said a discussion had arisen which convinced him that his connection with railroads would raise questions in hitherto sure republican states which may enable the enemy to obscure the great issues of the campaign. Under the circumstances and in the interest of the general success of the party he considered it best to withdraw. Every sentence of his speech was received with applause and when he concluded he was repeatedly cheered.

On behalf of the Virginia delegation it was announced that John Wise had been elected chairman of that delegation.

General Hastings then took the floor and said it would be in the best interests of the party to adjourn until 10 o'clock in the morning. Green of Nevada, Wiley of Missouri, Henderson of Iowa, Fuller of North Carolina, King of Maryland, all in behalf of their delegations, seconded the motion to adjourn. The roll was called and the motion prevailed by a vote of 535 to 282. New York voted 10 for and 61 against adjournment. Ohio voted solid for, Pennsylvania 50 for 10 against.

While the roll was being called there were loud calls for a speech from Colonel Ingersoll and he was invited to address the assemblage, after the formal adjournment had been announced, which was at 7:54 p.m.

INGERSOLL CRIED DOWN.

Col. Ingersoll was loudly cheered. He proceeded to address the assemblage in his usual eloquent and brilliant manner. He eulogized the Republican party as the greatest ever formed by the human race, and made a strong protective argument which was well received and loudly cheered. Finally, however, when he expressed a desire to see Gresham placed upon the ticket he was greeted with shouts of dissent and great confusion, which completely drowned all expressions of approval. Many delegates left the hall. Cries were made for Foraker and other favorites, mingled with cries of "go on; go on." Col Ingersoll stood smiling and calm amid the uproar and after a few moments had elapsed, raised his hand as if to quiet the storm but the tumult only seemed to increase and it becoming apparent that the crowd determined not to listen to him, Ingersoll, with expressions of contempt upon his face resumed his seat. The disorder and excitement continued for some minutes. There were calls for various speakers, but the crowd had lost control of itself and could not agree upon a man they wanted to hear. Fred Douglas, too, endeavored to restore order, but the yelling crowd refused to pay any attention to him. Just then the band struck up a medley of popular airs and this brought about comparative order, but at this point the California delegation raised a flag inscribed "Blaine and protection." The piercing yells which greeted this drowned the music and led to a renewal of the confusion. Ex-Congressman Fitch of Nevada, a man of gigantic stature, appealed for order, but he was totally disregarded.

Again Fred Douglas took the gavel and perhaps because the crowd was tired out, he succeeded this time in making himself heard, and announced that Chas. R. Pope, notedactor, would recite "Sheridan's Ride." Mr. Pope recited the famous poem in a stirring manner and received a generous round of applause. Hon. Thos. Fitch, of California, then began to speak and after listening to a sentence or two and discovering it to be a campaign speech, the audience become restless and disorderly and the speaker could not be heard. Delegates who had remained in the hall then began to pass out. The spectators seemed undecided what to do. It was then announced the sergeant-at-arms needed possession of the hall in order to prepare it for to-morrow's convention. The galleries murmured for a moment, but the majority seemed in favor of ending what had degenerated into an unorganized and aimless assemblage and in a few moments the hall was cleared.

DEPEW'S WITHDRAWAL.

After this morning's session of the convention there was a conference of New Yorkers, when Depew announced his withdrawal in much the same terms that he spoke in the convention to-night and added that as Harrison was the only man that could carry the state he would advise his fellow delegates to give him their support. Senator Hiscock and Warner Miller spoke in the same strain and it was finally decided with but two dissents to turn the delegation over to the Indianna man. The news of this action was quickly carried into the Sherman camp, and it was conceded that something would have to be done to turn the Harrison tide that was inevitable. The supporters of Allison, Alger and Gresham appear to have felt about the same way and so when General Hastings proposed an adjournment, the states which father the three candidates in question were prompt with their second.

In the main the vote of to-night represents the field against Harrison. The latter appears to have gained considerable since adjournment. His friends claim that on the first ballot to-morrow he will have, besides the vote of his state, 62 from New York, the solid vote of West Virginia, 13 from Wisconsin, as well as support from Tennessee, Vermont and Nevada. It is reported to-night that the Alger support will jump to Blaine in the morning with a view of securing a place on the ticket for the "Wolverine" governor.

ALASKA NEWS.

(North Star.)

Mr. Charles E. Overend, one of the teachers of the Industrial School at Sitka, who sailed May 6th in search of health, died three days later on the steamer. Mr. Overend was consistent in his christian work, quiet in his manners, pleasant in his social relations, and skillful both as an architect and carpenter, Though during his stay at the mission he suffered with poor health, yet he succeeded in giving several of the boys a good knowledge of carpentering and house-building. It is expected that Mrs. Overend will resume her position in the school.

Last month the Sitka mission had the honor of a visit from Mr. Wm. Duncan, the pioneer missionary on the North Pacific Coast. His coming was an unexpected joy to the Metlakahtla boys, who greatly revere him, and a blessing to the teachers, who gained new courage and inspiration from his conversation. Our only sorrow was that he did not remain longer.

Cattle Drowned, Mines Flooded, Railway Traffic Stopped, Cities Inundated and the Crops Ruined — Still Raining Throughout the Republic.

(Special to THE COLONIST.)

ZACATECAS, Mex., June 22.—The worst flood ever known in the history of Mexico occurred on the night of Tuesday, the 19th. Rain started at 5 p.m. and continued all night and all the next day. Latest advices from Setos report five hundred houses swept away, and a great number of lives lost, while at Leon, the next city in size to the capital, 1000 bodies have been recovered up to 6 p.m. One mile square in the heart of the city is gorged, while every hour brings to light new horrors. At Lagan about forty miles north of Leon the loss of life and property is nearly equally as terrible as at Leon. Many people and cattle are being swept away in the rushing waters. Mines are filling with water and miners are trying to escape drowning. The country from Celaga to Logas is one immense sea of water, while the railroad is in a deplorable condition. Hundreds of families are homeless at all points and many are starving before relief can be sent to them. The crops are ruined. There is no telegraphic communication by railroad to the city of Mexico and it is still raining over the entire republic.

LONDON, June 22.—In a letter dated Nov. 2, 1887, Emin Bey writes that he had received no tidings from Stanley.

Dissident Members Faithful.

The dissident members of parliament had a meeting to-day. Lord Hartington presided and delivered a speech in which he strongly supported the government in its intentions to drop the Sunday closing clause in the local government bill. He warned the dissident members who had avowed their intention to support the clause that they would place the government in a difficult position if they persisted. At the conclusion of Lord Hartington's address a resolution to support the government was unanimously carried.

Morley Will Offer a Resolution.

In the Commons to-day, John Morley gave notice that he intended to introduce a resolution to the effect that the operation of the crimes act tends to undermine the respect entertained for the law and to estrange the minds of the people of Ireland and deeply injure the common interests of the United Kingdom. Gladstone gave notice that he would, on Monday, ask the government to appoint a day for the discussion of the resolution. Mr. Smith, government leader, said he had listened with the greatest attention to Morley's notice, feeling that it was a challenge to the conduct of the government in every respect. He would forthwith place next Monday at Morley's disposal for the resolution. This elicited loud cheers from the opposition.

Locating the New Loan.

MONTREAL, June 22. — Hon. Mr. Foster, minister of finance, and deputy attorney Minister Courtney arrived in town this morning and had a conference with the leading bankers concerning the disposal of the proceeds of the recent loan in London. There is a plethora of money here and the bankers do not seem inclined to take any money at the rates asked by the government. It is probable some arrangement will be come to by which the other banks, probably the Merchants, British, Commerce and Toronto will be associates with the leading banks for carrying the deposit for the government.

A Strike on the Wharves.

Van Horne, trustees of the South-Eastern Railroad Company, ordering them to pay $45,556 due for cars built. The trustees pleaded that the road secured the cars before they took office for the benefit of the bondholders and were incorporated in the assets of the railway, but the court took the other view.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS OF CANADA.

We glean from the annual report for 1886 just now to hand from the department of agriculture, the following information with reference to the grave crimes, which are the only ones we can now consider. During the year 1886 there were in Canada 27 persons charged with murder, of whom 14 were convicted and sentenced to death, 10 were acquitted, 2 detained for lunacy, and in one case the jury disagreed. Of those convicted of murder one was in Prince Edward Island, two were in Ontario, four in British Columbia and seven in the Northwest Territories. Of attempts to murder there were 13 charges and 8 convictions. One of the convictions was in New Brunswick, 1 in Ontario and 6 were in British Columbia. Of manslaughter there were in all 22 charges and 11 convictions. The convictions were divided among the provinces, as follows: Quebec, 1; Ontario, 8; British Columbia, 2. The official tables give the residences of the persons committing crimes, dividing those who live in cities and towns from those who dwell in the rural districts. Of the 14 convicted of murder 13 resided in the rural districts; of the 8 convicted of attempt to murder 7 were in the rural districts as were 9 out of the 11 convicted of manslaughter. These figures afford a strange commentary upon the commonly received opinion that the graver crimes are most prevalent in cities. The contrast is so very strong as to show pretty conclusively that crimes of violence are more frequent in the country districts than in cities. Doubtless the greater opportunities, and the absence of police restriction tend largely to account for the extraordinary difference. The educational status of the persons convicted is worthy of remark. Of the 14 convicted of murder 10 were unable to read or write, and the remaining 4 had but an elementary education. Of the 11 convicted of manslaughter 4 could neither read nor write, and 6 others had but a very limited education. Another column in the table is intended to show what were the habits of the criminal class as to the use of liquors, whether moderate or immoderate. Five of those convicted of murder were set down as moderate, and none as immoderate. Six of the 13 convicted of attempt to murder were moderate and 1 was immoderate, while 3 are tabled as moderate and 4 immoderate among the 11 convicted of manslaughter.

INGERSOLL AS AN ORATOR.

While we have no sympathy with the views of "Col. Bob" Ingersoll on religious matters, it must be conceded that he is a polished orator, and one of the most brilliant rhetoricians in the United States. He was the orator of the day on a recent memorable occasion in the city of New York. Towards the close of his oration he depicted the horrors of the civil war and of slavery, the abolition of which was one of the outgrowths of the sanguinary fratricidal contest, which cost the nations hundreds of thousands of lives and millions of money. Turning from the gloomy side of the picture, Mr. Ingersoll gave his vivid imagination full sway and thus took a vision of the future.

"A vision of the future arises. I see our country filled with happy homes, with firesides of content—the foremost land of all the earth.

"I see a world where thrones have crumbled, and where the kings are dust. The aristocracy of idleness has perished from the earth.

"I see a world without a slave. Man at last is free. Nature's forces have by science been enslaved. Lightning and light, wind and wave, frost and flame, and all the secret, subtle powers of earth and air are the tireless toilers for the human race.

"I see a world of peace, adorned with every art, with music's myriad voices thrilled, while lips are rich with words of love and truth; a world in which no exile sighs, no prisoner mourns; where work and worth go hand in hand; where the poor girl trying to win bread with the needle—the needle that has been called "the asp for the breast of the poor"—is not driven to the desperate choice of crime or death, of suicide or shame.

"I see a world without the beggar's outstretched palm, the miser's hard horny stare, the piteous wail of want, the livid lips of lies, the cruel eyes of scorn.

"I see a race without a disease of flesh or brain—shapely and fair—the married harmony of form and function—and as I look, life lengthens, joy deepens, love canopies the earth; and over all, in the great dome, shines the eternal star of human hope."

From a rhetorical standpoint the close Mr. Ingersoll's oration is very fine; but it is the Utopian dream of a too sanguine optimist. The time may come when his ideal of a happy world shall be realized, but we are afraid it is a very long way off. When the millenium shall arrive the happy condition of things pictured by Mr. Ingersoll may exist—but not till then.

A VETERAN JOURALIST.

The oldest journalist in Europe is Sir Edward Baines. He is now in his eighty-eighth year, and he claims to be a working journalist of more than seventy years standing. He began his career as reporter for the Leeds Mercury before Queen Victoria was born and while George the Third was King. He has seen the growth of popular rights in Great Britain and has done his part in securing for the people a share in the government of the nation. He was in the prime of his manhood when Catholic emancipation was gained, and was a journalist of some experience when the first Reform Bill was passed. He took part in the agitation for the repeal of the Corn Laws and had a hand in the inauguration of Free Trade. More wonderful still he has lived to see the hated, the despised and the contemned Radical, John Bright, become the zealous supporter of a Tory Government. He has chronicled the doings of Chartist agitators and reported the speeches of Irish repealers. He worked hard more than fifty years ago to establish mechanics' institutes, and at a later date he became a convert to the cause of public popular education. He lived in an eventful time and was an active participator in all its great movements. The mind of this veteran journalist is still active, and he takes a lively interest in all that is going on around him. Of late years he has been exerting himself in the promotion of the higher education in his native county, Yorkshire.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

A WRITER connected with the Boston Transcript noticed some peculiar article in the way of confectionery in a shop window in Boston and had the curiosity to ask what it was. He learned that it was sugared violets imported from England, and was sold at four dollars per pound. The newspaper man thought at first it was a joke, but was assured it was a veritable fact.

ONE of the boldest building operations ever attempted is being performed at The New York Times office. A new thirteen-storey granite building is being constructed around and in substitution for the old building. The work of publishing the paper in the old building is going on as usual. Every foot of the old building will be wiped out bit by bit as the work proceeds. The new one will be one of the handsomest in the city.

THE Marquis of Lansdowne, replying to the welcome of his Wiltshire friends, said he returned to England with the deepest feeling of respect and regard for the people of Canada, the greatest admiration for their liberal institutions, a profound belief in the importance of the part Canada was destined to play in the history of the British race, and, lastly, with a feeling of deep pride in the great Empire which was the heritage of the people of Wiltshire as well as of the people of Canada.

THE city of Fredericton, N.B., which has been in bad repute for some time with business men, has abolished the license tax on commercial travellers for wholesale houses. The city of Quebec was another of those fossil cities which was for many years of the opinion that the erection of a Chinese wall all around it was necessary to the maintenance of its trade and its municipal institutions. Some time since it saw matters in a new light, and the result has more than satisfied the majority of its people. No doubt Fredericton will have the same experience.

SUNDAY SPORTS.

TO THE EDITOR:—On last Sunday afternoon I saw a number of boys and men playing baseball in the vacant lot where Government and Douglas streets come together. The game went on in full view of people going to and returning from church. A crowd of well-dressed youths of both sexes, whose parents probably thought they were at Sabbath school, lounged on the fence watching the game with keen interest. Amongst those who passed by were two clergymen who seemed to have become so accustomed to the profanation of the Lord's day that they did not offer a word of remonstrance to the players. Have we a Sabbath observance law, Mr. Editor? and, if we have, are there no Sabbatarians in Victoria to see that it is put in force?

Apropos of Sunday baseball games, the following is suggestive: In 1618, James I. of England published his "Book of Sports," and commanded that certain games should be played in the Presbyterian church-yard every Sunday, at the close of divine services. John Ross, minister of Blairgowrie, being a strategist, adopted a novel method of making the royal ordinance ineffective. He was a strong, athletic man, and, as his parishioners had selected football from the list of "Sunday games," he appeared among them to join in the sport. Throwing his coat on a tombstone, he exclaimed:

Lie ye there,
Minister o' Blair,
Till I, John Ross,
Get a game at the ba'.

He kicked at the ball with enthusiasm, entering thoroughly into the game. But somehow everyone of his kicks missed the ball and hit the shins of the players near him.

He apologized: but every Sunday so many players limped home that the game was abandoned, ostensibly on account of the minister's awkward kicking. But he did what he intended to do—kicked "Sunday games" out of his church-yard.

Oh! for some big-footed, big-booted Presbyterian clergyman to tackle the Sunday baseballers of this town and bruise their shins. CALVIN.

It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. SORE FROM KNEE to ANKLE

Skin entirely gone. Flesh a mass of disease. Leg diminished one-third in size. Condition hopeless. Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

For three years I was almost crippled with an awful sore leg from my knee down to my ankle; the skin was entirely gone, and the flesh was one mass of disease. Some physicians pronounced it incurable. It had diminished about one-third the size of the other, and I was in a hopeless condition. After trying all kinds of remedies and spending hundreds of dollars, from which I got no relief whatever, I was persuaded to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and the result was as follows: After three days I noticed a decided change for the better, and at the end of two months I was completely cured. My flesh was purified and the bone (which had been exposed for over a year) got sound. The flesh began to grow, and to-day, and for nearly two years past, my leg is as well as ever it was, sound in every respect, and not a sign of the disease to be seen.

DEAR SIRS,—I have carefully analyzed the sample of "Armbrecht's Coca Wine" sent to me on the 5th ultimo. I find that the wine contains 0.0214 per cent. of Cocaine by weight; that is, each wineglassful of the wine contains 0.035 grammes, or a little more than half a grain of the Alkaloid. Armbrecht's Coca Wine may be briefly described as a very agreeable preparation, containing in each wineglassful a good tonic dose of the active principle of Erythroxylon Coca. I remain, Sirs,

WHO IS YOUR BEST FRIEND?

Your stomach of course. Why? Because if it is out of order you are one of the most miserable creatures living. Give it a fair, honorable chance and see if it is not the best friend you have in the end. Don't smoke in the morning. Don't drink in the morning. If you must smoke and drink wait until your stomach is through with breakfast. You can drink more and smoke more in the evening and it will tell on you less. If your food ferments and does not digest right,—if you are troubled with Heartburn, Dizziness of the head, coming up of the food after eating, Biliousness, Indigestion, or any other trouble of the stomach, you had best use Green's August Flower, as no person can use it without immediate relief.

A Valuable Discovery.

F. P. Tanner, of Neebing, Ont., says he has not only found B. B. B. a sure cure for Dyspepsia, but he has also found it to be the best medicine for regulating and invigorating the system that he has ever taken. B. B. B. is the great system regulator. tu-th-sat-dw

THE VIGIL OF ADAM.

Far in Asia, saith the legend,
On a peak whose nameless towers
Use the plains a hundred miles off
For their dial of the hours;

Where the tallest Himalaya
Rises sad because so lonely,
Whence the eagle swoops in terror,
And the stars of God are only;

Sitteth one of ancient visage,
One more strange than aught below him,
One who lived so near to God once,
That for man we scarce should know him;

Far above the busy world tribes,
Miles above the pine trees, bending,
Lonely as when God first made him,
There he keepeth watch unending.

—Dr. S. Weir Mitchell.

MR. MOUSER'S SAWBUCK.

Mr. Mouser and his merry little wife occupied a charming cottage in the suburbs of a large city in the "Fatherland." His business connections were of such a nature that he was usually at leisure after 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Mouser prided himself on being a man of originality and brains. Mr. Mouser also liked a little joke, at other people's expense.

It was autumn. Mr. Mouser had just laid in a goodly supply of winter fuel. Wood was chiefly used for this purpose in the land of Mr. Mouser's birth.

Sitting by the window of his cozy living room, enjoying a royal smoke from the long stemmed porcelain pipe, Mr. Mouser watched the wood sawyer plying his trade, made easy by long habit of handling wood and saw. As Mr. Mouser gazed and pondered an idea crept into his head. It was grasped—as ideas quickly became captive there."

"Lizbeth," said he to his wife, "it is singular I never thought of it before—I generally think of such things—but it strikes me that I could saw that wood myself."

"Gracious! what an idea!"

"A bright one, isn't it? A big saving, too! Just see with what ease it is done—the man cuts through the sticks as if he were slicing bread and butter; besides, I require more exercise; my health is not what it has been."

"Why, dear, do you feel ill?"

"N-no, but a man needs to exert himself if he does not wish to run down in muscular power. My habits are too confining; a sense of this fact has been growing on me lately. But I have solved the difficulty while watching that man play on his sawjack."

A merry twinkle of the eyes and a laudable endeavor to maintain a serious expression would have convinced the beholder that Lizbeth also had ideas, but like a properly respectful wife she kept them to herself until called for.

"Do you think, Lizbeth, that a little gentle muscular activity is what I need to stimulate appetite?"

"You might paint the house or do some less tiresome work than woodsawing," replied Mrs. Mouser.

"Oh, you underrate my capacities, my dear. And sawing wood is not such hard work. Come and see how simply it is done, yet how every muscle is brought into play. I am enchanted with my idea, and shall carry it out. The man can finish this job, but it shall be the last I ever pay for."

Mr. Mouser meant business. He at once ordered the very best kind of a sawjack made. He purchased a splendid saw, with sharp teeth and a light frame. He pranced about, happy as a scoolboy, with dabs of yellow and green paint spattered all over his person, until finally the saw frame suited him in its bright yellow coat. The sawjack he painted a lovely light green.

Daily he promenaded impatiently around the sheds where the wood was stored, and grumbled because the fuel lasted so unusually long. At intervals he added another coat of green paint to the highly decorated sawing jack ("sawbuck" it is called sometimes), and bade all his acquaintances and friends come and inspect his patent calisthenic toys, until every one for miles around became familiar with Mr. Mouser's green sawing jack.

At last the longed for day arrived. A big load of fine hickory had been piled up in close proximity to the tools of decimation.

Mr. Mouser was all excitement. He passed by his amused wife with important disdain, and scarcely gave himself time to devour his dinner, he was so eager to be at work.

"Nothing more, thanks," he replied, as his wife wished to replenish his cup. Rising, he hastened to handle his pets with an ardor that caused Lizbeth to smile knowingly as she watched him pick out the very smallest and most slender cord sticks.

This was a great mistake on Mr. Mouser's part. He should have tackled the difficult ones first, on the simple but fruitful theory that custom would have sweetened his toil with the balm of greater ease.

My! how the saw rented and the abbreviated sticks tumbled to the ground! Still Lizbeth, who was peeping with laughter brimming eyes, noticed that at the third cord stick work seemed to slacken just a little, but seven were finished, and Mr. Mouser came in, declaring he felt glorious.

The second day Mr. Mouser remained at table a trifle longer. Four cord sticks in broken lengths licked the dust, however.

Third day—Mr. Mouser took time to glance over The Daily News after dinner. Record: Three cord sticks.

"Lizbeth," said he, "I think I've been cheated in the saw jack. It is not put together on as practical a plan as I was led to believe. It wriggles."

Fourth day—Mr. Mouser toyed over his dinner extensively. He smoked his pipe and read the paper. He glanced over his monthly magazine until dark, and then started up, exclaiming:

"Mercy! how short the days are!"

Mrs. Mouser enjoyed the situation intensely, but said never a word.

Fifth day—Mr. Mouser rose with a sense of injustice resting upon him. All day he was haunted by the outrageous fate that made him the owner of a sawing jack.

"My dear, we require more wood than usual today and to-morrow, washing and ironing days, you know," said Mrs. Mouser as soon as he got home.

"I never saw anything like the way you women manage to consume fuel!" and Mr. Mouser grabbed his hat and strode angrily toward the woodpile. A few sticks fell before the savage manipulation of the saw, while Mr. Mouser's snarling kept excellent time to the wild motions of the sawyer.

With a crash he sent the saw flying over the woodpile. This was too much. His wife was a brute to expect him to work like a slave during the few moments he could call his own free from business drudgery. But if he gave up he would never hear the last of it. Oh, if he could only get rid of that sawjack.

A long time he pondered, at last a smile of joy illuminated his face. That night, after his wife had retired, Mr. Mouser slipped out and carried that hated green object to the front gate. Presto, in the morning the corpus delicti would be gone. The highway was full of robbers, who would steal anything and everything.

He would make a big fuss about the loss, but take good care not to buy a second sawjack.

He slept the sleep of the just until about 4 o'clock in the morning. It was still dark, but his anxiety to assure himself of the loss of his trouble caused him to sneak out and reconnoiter. The sawjack was still there. Mr. Mouser whispered—not a prayer. "Oh, well, there is time enough still between this hour and daylight for a theft to be committed," he muttered. It was the voice of Mrs. Mouser that awakened him in time for breakfast. He glanced out of the window the first thing. Oh, how brightly the sun shone, and the sawjack gleamed up at him in all its verdant beauty. No robber hand had carried it away. A fearful sigh escaped the Mouser bosom.

"You must saw some wood for me before you go, dear," said his wife.

"What, more wood?"

"Yes, dear; recollect you only sawed one stick last evening," rejoined Mrs. Mouser meekly, but a wicked gleam of mischief played about her eyes and mouth.

Mr. Mouser ignored her reply, and hastened to town with his pretty tools with a vigor born of awful fury, but way down in his soul a voice groaned, that sawing jack must go!

Where? whence? how?

Mr. Mouser was a man of resources. Twelve o'clock, midnight. A burglarish darkness and silence brooded around as a man stole hence from his couch, and, grabbing his trousers, left a cozy bedroom. A little later the only other active creature about, a feline prima donna, might have witnessed a sorry sight: a solitary man marching townward, clutching in his strong right hand a beautifully painted green sawing jack.

Soon he returned. The sawing jack, where was it?

Mr. Mouser rose that morning in a most delightful frame of mind.

"Lizbeth, my dear little Lizbeth," he exclaimed, friskily, "I am going to work in earnest today. I am feeling fine, much better than I have for some time. Here, feel this arm. How's that for muscle, eh? That's what sawing wood has done!"

Lizbeth blinked sadly, but looked contented. Mr. Mouser hastened out to "flip off a stick or two before breakfast," but soon came in looking quite angry and puzzled.

"What in the world has become of that jack?" It was gone. "Such infamy—to steal one's very impiements of toil!" he cried in a rage, as he sent for the old wood sawyer again.

Mr. Mouser, of course, grieved over his loss, but managed to conquer the regret sufficiently to display some of his old wit and mirth.

But this good feeling received a sudden check the morning after the burglary of the "jack."

He had just opened the daily paper, when his glance was arrested by a leading paragraph.

"Lizbeth, look at this!"

Mrs. Mouser became alarmed. Her husband was pale as death and trembling in every limb as he handed her the paper. She read:

"The residence of the Hon. Oliver was broken into night before last and a large sum of money and valuable plate and jewelry stolen. * * * The robbers entered by the garden window, from which they removed the iron grating, while standing on a singular looking wooden object, recognized by old fashioned country folks as a 'sawbuck.' It is painted a light green, and will doubtless prove a valuable clew toward tracing the miscreants. A thousand dollars reward is offered for return of jewelry or information leading to the arrest of the robbers."

"Why this is splendid! You can at once notify the authorities that the 'jack' is yours—the thieves who carried it off"——

"Oh, my—oh, my!" groaned Mr. Mouser; "don't talk to me about thieves —I may be arrested any moment when they discover"——

"Discover what? How can they arrest an innocent man because he owns an article stolen from him and used by wretches?"——

"Oh, Lizbeth, I may not even be able to prove an alibi. Oh, what shall I do! I tell you wife, I am entirely innocent"——

"Ah! we nab you confessing, my fine bird," a rude voice here interrupted, followed by the entrance of the minions of justice.

Mrs. Mouser begged, cried, stormed and implored. Mr. Mouser was mute and totally crushed, but the bold minions of authority led him away to a dungeon, where he languished for three days before his friends could obtain a hearing for him. In the meantime the real culprits had been caught, but the law required an explanation of the language that appeared to the police like a question of complicity, notwithstanding Mr. Mouser's unquestionable social standing and perfect respectability.

The court room was crowded with his friends and neighbors. His wife gazed at him tearfully and lovingly, but Mr. Mouser was very much cast down. There was no escape. He had to tell how distasteful wood sawing had proved to him, how he feared the ridicule of wife and friends if after all the boasting he gave it up. But when he related his midnight elopement with his green sawing jack, even the court joined in the broad smile that ripened into a roar of laughter from the less dignified listeners. The crowning humiliation came, however, when he left the prison for the coach to be taken home. There he saw the green abomination resting at the driver's feet on the front of the carriage. His wife has not stopped laughing yet at his midnight adventure.—Adapted from the German, by Mrs. Miles H. McNamara in Boston Budget.

Meanest Man on Record.

The meanest man on record jumped aboard a Woodward avenue car the other afternoon. Every seat was occupied, and what did that man do but look out of a window and whisper something about a dog fight. Of course, no man could keep his seat under such a provocation. When Brown had looked in vain for the dog fight, he also looked in vain for his seat. It was completely hidden by that mean man, who was so deeply interested in his paper as to be wholly oblivious of everything else. But Brown had his revenge. A lady soon entered, and before any one could offer her a seat, he punched up the mean man and said:

"Will you please give this lady a seat, sir?"

Then they hung on to the straps and glowered at each other until their brows ached.—Detroit Free Press.

ELECTRIC FORCE.

The Great Fundamental Principle of the Universe and Its Power to Restore Health to Humanity.

Experiments by scientists are constantly and surely proving that electricity is to be the great motor power of creation. Electricity is the most powerful chemical agent, as well as the basis of chemical action. It is the primal element of light and heat; the promoter of life, and the sustainer of health.

Disease yields readily to its magnetic touch, and even unrelenting death is averted by its presence. Thousands of afflicted and suffering bear witness to its healing power. The electro-magnetic as practiced by the Drs. Darrin has revolutionized the practice of medicine, as is shown by the following:

EXTRACTS OF TESTIMONIALS.

Mrs. J. J. Evans, Stella, W. T.: Neuralgia of the stomach and heart, weak lungs and greatly emaciated; cured and gained ten pounds in two months.

LOCAL AND PROVINCIAL.

The Prodigal Daughter.

To the home of his father returning,
The Prodigal, weary and worn,
Is greeted with joy and thanksgiving,
As when on his first natal morn;
A "robe" and a "ring" are his portion,
The servants as suppliants bow,
He is clad in fine linen and purple,
In return for his penitent vow.

But ah! for the Prodigal Daughter,
Who has wandered away from her home—
Her feet must still press the dark valley
And through the wild wilderness roam;
Alone, on the bleak, barren mountains—
The mountains so dreary and cold—
No hand is outstretched in fond pity
To welcome her back to the fold.

But, thanks to the Shepherd whose mercy
Still follows His sheep, though they stray;
The weakest, and e'en the forsaken,
He bears in His bosom alway;
And in the bright mansions of glory,
Which the blood of His sacrifice won,
There is room for the Prodigal Daughter
As well as the Prodigal Son.

The Salmon Run.

Says Thursday's Columbian: The salmon run last night was very encouraging to the fishermen, the boats all having made good catches. At the mouth of the river, and also above the city, a large number of fishermen who have been laying off for some weeks, have commenced fishing again and will remain steadily at work till the close of the season.

Incoming Passengers.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Passengers on the Mexico for Victoria: Mrs. L. Martin, W. E. Lewis, Mrs. White, F. Farnklin and wife, A. Netherway, J. A. Doyle, Mrs. H. Russell, B. Levy and wife, W. Washington and wife, W. Blacke, Rev. C. W. Nicklin, W. Mabee, M. S. Lowenthal and wife, A. Silverthorn, R. Dinsdale, Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Castle.

Miraculous Escape.

The seven-year-old son of Mr. Wm. Creech had a miraculous escape on Quadra street on Thursday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock. The little fellow was riding a velocipede when a butcher's cart, driven at a breakneck speed, ran full tilt against it, taking off the front wheel and throwing the boy to one side. It was a wonderful escape from sudden death. Complaints of this kind are becoming very frequent of late and employers should admonish their boys not to drive so furiously; otherwise it will be necessary to direct the attention of the policemen to so flagrant a violation of the law.

The Bairnsfather Family.

The above talented family will appear in The Victoria on the evenings of June 30th and July 2nd. The Kingston News makes the following reference to them: "A very large audience assembled in the Music Hall Wednesday night to hear the Bairnsfather family. Everybody was delighted. Mr. Bairnsfather, besides possessing a cultivated voice, which he knows how to use effectively, is uncommonly felicitous as a story teller, and his delineations in story of the peculiarities and characteristics of the Scotch are inimitable. Everyone of his stories provoked roars of laughter and was stormily applauded by the whole house. We believe he is the most versatile of the many Scotch vocalists and humorists who have visited this country. Etta Bairnsfather has a beautiful soprano voice which she uses most effectually. Little Johnnie has a remarkably powerful voice for one so young. He is well trained, as, also, is the sweet voice of his young sister Maggie."

Paine-Peterson.

The final arrangements for the Paine-Peterson boat race were completed yesterday, and everything indicates that the race will be the most exciting sporting event which has yet taken place in the province. Mr. Chas. E. Redfern will be starter and referee; Paine's judges will be Major E. G. Prior, M. P., and Mr. J. R. McKenzie; Messrs. Eugene Flanders and Leander Stevenson acting as judges for Peterson. Considerable money has been wagered on the result, betting last evening being slightly in favor of the San Francisco oarsman. In addition to the stakes of $2,000, the race will be for the championship of the Pacific Coast, and there is little doubt but that both oarsmen will strain every nerve to win. Wm. Paine will row at 154 lbs., and Peterson at about 178 lbs.; both men are said to be in the best of health and trained to perfection. Peterson has not yet rowed over the course; but will leave the city by the 8:20 train this morning for Shawnigan Lake, with his boat, and accompanied by his trainer. Upon arrival at the lake he will row over the course, which has already been surveyed and staked, and will then put up at the Morton House until the time set for the race. Paine is receiving every attention at the hands of his trainer, Harry Ball, and feels quite confident of his success. Trains will leave Victoria station at 8:20 and 11:30 a.m., and 2:30 p. m., returning to the city after the race and carrying all passengers at single fares.

Aldermere.

A pleasant drive of an hour and a half from the city by way of the Gorge or Craigflower and the Goldstream road brings the traveler to Aldermere, a lovely tract of land at the foot of the Goldstream range, comprising some 400 acres, the property of Dr. Hanington and his brother, Mr. W. Hanington. Millstream, a famous trout brook, winds through the land, which is partly meadow and partly wooded, with hills rising on either side. The whole is enclosed with a barbed wire fence and within the enclosure deer and grouse are numerous. The Messrs. Hanington, having witnessed the unnecessary waste of trout-life by amateur sportsmen, will preserve a portion of the brook and have established a small hatchery from which good results are already obtainable. Upon a picturesque spot overlooking the brook, Mr. S. C. Burris, the architect, has just completed for Mr. W. Hanington one of his patent combination dwellings, a storey-and-a-half in height, with six rooms. The dwelling is very conveniently arranged and is absolutely fireproof. No cracks are visible in the concrete or plaster. A specimen of this class of structure was erected on Government street some months ago and subjected to a fierce fire for an hour without sustaining material damage, evidence of which is furnished by the building itself, it being still standing in excellent condition and is used as a business premises. Combined with lightness, strength, durability and safety, the cost is less by many dollars than an ordinary erection of the same size. The Messrs. Hanington are first to put this style of building to a practical test and are highly pleased with their selection.

Drake, trustee for the company of St. Paul, Minn., advertises that he will sell some 1,240 acres of anthracite coal lands at his office in St. Paul, on the 21st inst., to settle the controversy amongst people interested. The limits are about one mile from Canmore station of the Canadian Pacific railway, all in one block and in the Bow river.—Herald.

"The Dominion Illustrated."

"The Dominion Illustrated" is the title of a new illustrated weekly publication which Messrs. G. E. Desbarats & Son, Montreal, purpose bringing out. We have received a sample copy, which contains much artistic work. There is no doubt of its being high-class, and it promises to fill a want that has been long experienced. We have every confidence the paper has "come to stay." We are sure that if it does not, it will be through no fault of the publishers or of the scholarly editor, Mr. Lesperance. Thoroughly Canadian in tone, the most eminent litterateurs of the Dominion will contribute to its pages. Members and associates of the Royal Canadian Academy will assist with sketches, and clever cartoons will form an interesting feature. We bespeak for this laudable enterprise the patronage of the public,

Indian Troubles on the Yukon.

The Alaska Free Press of the 9th inst. contains particulars of a quarrel between the Chilkat and Sitka tribes of Indians, in which the chiefs of both tribes were killed. The trouble arose at the Yukon portage on the 5th, caused by the Chilkats objecting to a party of Sitkas doing some packing for white miners, and claiming that that part of the country being theirs, they had the exclusive right to do all the packing. In the quarrel blows were first exchanged, when the Sitka chief shot and wounded Klamont, chief of the Chilkats. The Sitka was then stabbed to death, and his death so exasperated his tribe that they resolved to finish Klamant. The miners were about to take steps to protect him from the infuriated Sitkas, but he declined their assistance, telling them he would show them how a chief would die. He painted his face, commenced singing the death chant and advanced on the yelling Sitkas brandishing his knife. Before he reached them they all fired and he dropped; but not being yet dead, his enemies rushed in and stabbed him to death.

Hauled Down the Flag.

The German flag was set at half-mast over Turn Halle at Portland by the officers of the society to mark their regret at the death of the Emperor Frederick. It was promptly hauled down by Edward Alisky, a member of the society, who thus wrote to the Oregonian in explanation of his action: "The dead Emperor, whom as a man I personally respect for his good qualities and virtues, was neither a member of the Portland Social Turn Verein nor of the N. A. Turner Bund. He was not mayor of our city, nor governor of Oregon, nor president of this Union, and we are not supposed to hoist our flag for outsiders. He was at the head of a despotic government, which strangles free speech, liberty of the press, and even prohibits the circulation of the organ of the Turner Union, the N. A. Turnzeitung. His principles and the principles of his government are diametrically opposed to our free institutions and the N. A. Turner Union, and we as a body, or any liberty-loving citizen of this country cannot consistently mourn for a dead potentate, even if he was ever so good, without violating our republican principles. Therefore the flag which has been hoisted without the consent of the Turn Verein had to come down to save the honor of our society and to avoid being ridiculed by the most intelligent and enlightened of our countrymen as well as all true native-born republicans. If the Portland Social Turn Verein should expel me from its ranks, I consider this act as an honor to me, for I will not have anything in common with a lot of flunkeys and lickspittles or anything which is foreign to the ideas of every true American."

Patti-Rosa Company.

Patti-Rosa will open for a season of two nights in The Victoria on Wednesday evening next. The S. F. Call says: The late Fred Marsden's comedy-drama entitled "Bob" was presented at the Bush-street Theatre last evening, and served to introduce to a San Francisco audience Miss Patti-Rosa, concerning whose ability as a soubrette actress much that is commendatory has been written. It is our pleasant province to add our quota of praise to these flattering but well-deserved notices. We have, in this country, soubrettes without number, but few, indeed, have reached the standard, or even approached that set up by Miss Patti-Rosa. She has youth, prettiness, sprightliness and intelligence on her side, qualities that admirably fit her for soubrette work. But her attractions do not end here, for she can sing, dance and play the banjo, and withal is so captivating that she fairly wins the hearts of everybody. "Bob" is by no means an ill-written or ill-conceived comedy. It is healthy in tone, and is highly amusing as well as interesting. The opening scene reveals Rebecca (nicknamed "Bob") Romayne as a pupil in Miss Plum's educational establishment at Cedar College in London, she having been sent there from Australia by her father Wybert Romayne, who wanted her out of the way.

Suddenly the stern parent turns up as a claimant for the Garnet Oaks estate; Jansen Garnet, the owner, having, it is believed, died in Australia. Wybert Romayne gets possession of the property, but Jason Garnet comes upon the scene, when it transpires that an attempt has been made to murder him by a villainous Frenchman in the pay of Wybert Romayne. This had led to the rumor of his supposed death. He only turns up to die, however. After some further attempts at villainy by Romayne and his companion in crime, which are frustrated by Bob, the property gets to the rightful heirs. Miss Patti-Rosa, who appeared in the role, played the self-willed child to perfection, and her efforts were greatly appreciated by the audience. Miss Lizzie Hunt is a very pleasing actress, and did the part of Edna Garnet full justice. The Miss Plum of Miss Fanny E. Jacobs was a conscientious piece of work. Bert Cooke was very amusing as Professor Sharp. The villainy was in the hands of William N. Griffith and Joseph M. Francoeur, and was not allowed to suffer. The rest of the cast were equal to their responsibilities. "Bob" should draw crowded houses during its brief stay in San Francisco.

ST. ANN'S CONVENT EXAMINATION.

List of Prizes Awarded and Distribution of Academic Honors, Medals and Ribbons.

The annual midsummer examination of the young lady pupils of St. Ann's Convent was held yesterday afternoon in the spacious pavilion adjoining the convent, in the presence of a large number of ladies and gentlemen. The prizes were awarded to the successful pupils by the Mother Superioress, Very Rev. Father Jonckau and Hon. J. S. Helmcken. The young ladies were all attired in white muslin dresses with blue sashes and presented a very neat appearance. The customary exercises were dispensed with this year, and in lieu thereof an entertaining programme of music, recitations and dialogues was arranged and gone through with in a manner which greatly pleased the parents and visitors. The examination hall was tastefully decorated, the walls and several side tables being covered with crayon drawings, paintings and needle work of every description, all the handiwork of the pupils. Exquisitely finished velvet and wool work, specimens of crochetting, darning, knitting, etc., were shown and attracted much attention, every article exhibited deserving the highest praise and being most creditable to both teacher and pupil. Appended is the programme, the list of academic honors and the names of the prize winners:
